First Year

The class-room course work is designed to provide an in-depth knowledge in management science, plantation and associated agri-business sectors in general, and the functional areas of management. The first year courses provide grounding to the students in functional areas of management with application in plantation and associated agri-business sectors. The student need to take any two optional courses in each term of first year in consultation with the faculty advisor and the approval of FPM-ABPM committee. The institute encourages close working relationships with students and faculty across disciplines. The flexible curriculum allows students to create their own research plan under the guidance of faculty advisors.

The PGDM-ABPM graduates of IIPM, get exemption from first year FPM:ABPM courses. The FPM:ABPM committee could also recommend the exemption of a student from one or more PGP level courses, if he/she had already done them or having expertise in that courses out of experience. Such students can register for the required optional courses in lieu of the exempted courses and meet the minimum required credits. The optional courses could be selected by the student, communicated and finalized by the FPM committee.

Term Paper (Research oriented project of ten weeks duration immediately after Term-III)

Second Year

Term IV: Advanced courses in select areas

In the second year, students take advanced courses in their area of specialization and related fields for the purpose of acquiring in-depth knowledge. In addition, all students have to take a compulsory package of FPM courses, which are specially designed to develop research skills and an ability to integrate their learning. During this phase students interact closely with their area faculty and are encouraged to start exploring areas of research in their specialization.

Students need to take three research areas and allied courses to build specialization and two compulsory research enabling courses to build research skills in consultation with the faculty advisor and with the approval of FPM committee.

Term V: Case preparation and finalization

FPM student is expected to develop a case during the Second year based on the preliminary research. The case would be evaluated by the FPM: ABPM committee and each student must obtain a satisfactory grade otherwise the case has to be revised till it reaches up to a stage of satisfaction. Cases can be published by the students.

Term VI: Comprehensive Examination

The second year of the programme is intended for acquiring in depth knowledge of the area of specialization and related fields. On completion of the second year course work, the students take the area comprehensive examination.

The area comprehensive examination in the end of the 2nd year tests whether the student has obtained a satisfactory level of knowledge in his/her field of specialization and whether he/she has satisfactorily integrated the various courses taken in the area.

Initiation and formulation of Thesis Proposal:

After passing the comprehensive examination, the student enters the thesis stage. The student first develops a thesis proposal, for which he/she identifies a thesis topic, thesis advisor and gives a seminar on the thesis proposal before the Thesis Advisory Committee (TAC). The Thesis Advisory Committee [TAC] is appointed by the FPM-ABPM Chairperson in consultation with the faculty advisor. An expert or an external academician can also be a member of the committee provided he/she has the requisite expertise and interest to advise the student. A FPM-ABPM committee will prepare a panel of experts / external academicians for this purpose.

Third Year

Thesis Work, Research /Teaching Assignments:

Each of the doctoral students would be expected to provide assistance in research/teaching work of the Institute as a FPM scholar during the third and fourth years of study. This will provide them an opportunity to apply the research skills.

Fourth Year
