Date: 27-28th August 2021(Friday & Saturday)

The Covid-19 pandemic has thrown challenges globally in all spheres of business and impacted livelihoods, especially in the developing economies where almost 70% of the workforce are in self-employment or running micro, small and medium enterprises. There is evidence of a paradigm shift in business models, strategies and tactics in every business in all functional areas. The pandemic has forced businesses to leverage on technologies due to health and labor issues driving down the business sustainability, thereby necessitating entrepreneurs and prospective intrapreneurs to rethink and reinvent their businesses. This program is designed to provide a platform to entrepreneurs to “re-think” their business strategies and work on new business models relevant to address the current crisis innovatively. Since management of cash flows is critical for business sustainability, the program will focus on strategies to improve cash flows and profitability in the post-pandemic phase of the economy.
