Online Interactive Program on

Wood Plantations and Business

24th – 26th September 2021

Introduction:

The Institute offers a three-day management training program (MDP) on wood plantations and business for planters, small growers and entrepreneurs. Wood plantations such as Teak, Red Sanders, Rosewood, Indian Mahogany, Sal including sandalwood are becoming feasible and income-generating businesses with efficient management of resources such as labour, water, etc. In the recent trend there is a demand to grow commercial trees in the existing lands or estates/plantations. The proposed topics includes viz., concept of wood science, identification of species, cultivation, processing, management of wood plantations, supply chain, marketing, feasible business opportunities etc. will be covered in the program. The program is developed and designed by IIPM faculty in collaboration with scientists from the Institute of Wood Science and Technology and experts from the Department of Forestry.

Program Contents:

IIPM will be organizing the program in association with other institutions. The program will ensure that participants develop their management skills in wood plantation businesses for better income and profitability. The course structure is flexible to meet the felt-needs of the participants. The curriculum is designed to suit the fresher's and the experienced personnel from industry.

Program outcome:

The program would help the participants to understand the wood species and its technical, marketing, financial
