ABOUT THE PROGRAM

New risk factors have emanated due to global issues such as climate change, resource scarcity, rising sea levels, demographic shifts, human rights and other environmental and governance issues for corporate managers and executives as they face complexity in evaluating projects and reporting requirements for all the stakeholders. In fact, financial regulators in many countries are transitioning towards 'Integrated Reporting' where they are aiming for the integration of economic, environmental, social and governance reporting by the companies. ESG integration in every strategy is quite evident in the boardroom discussions for attaining sustainability goals. Hence, lies the need for training the executives on ESG and its reporting. In light of this, this 2-day Management Development Program organized by the Indian Institute of Plantation Management Bengaluru (IIPMB) aims to promote Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) awareness and engagement among officers, mid-level executives and professionals. This program encourages participants to address complex issues related to sustainability, corporate social responsibility and governance, thereby reinforce their sustainability efforts by effectively measure, manage and report on sustainability.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVE

In this 2-day program the participants are expected to design and develop an operational ESG framework. The program aims to raise awareness about environmental issues, need for decarbonisation strategies, foster a sense of community among employees, value creation and promote good governance, ethical decision making and reporting ESG.

FOR WHOM

The programme is suitable for:

- Executives working in the areas of CSR, Sustainability and Corporate Governance.
